The legends of the Arctic

Just 500 miles from the North Pole, the remote Svalbard archipelago is one of Europe's last great wildernesses. Dramatic snowy peaks and enormous glaciers frame vast tundra deserts and spellbinding icebergs.

At the height of the Arctic summer, the sun glows through the night, wildflowers pop up across the tundra, and Svalbard comes to life. Wildlife abounds – polar bears, walrus, reindeer, ringed seals, arctic foxes and many whale species make their homes here.

Join us to explore this last frontier – it's sure to be an extraordinary adventure.
